THIRD TOWNSHIP SHOWS GREATEST PERCENTAGE GROWTH IN POPULATION

Final Census Figures for County Released By Dr. Bailey. First Township Shows Largest Population

Dr. W. C. Bailey, supervisor of the census for the 10th Congressional District of California, this week issued the final results of the recent census taking in this county. Dr. Bailey's figures show the population of San Mateo county to be 77,134. This is a gain of considerably more than 100 per cent during the past ten years, the population at that time being 36,781. There are 841 farms listed in this county.

During the past ten years the greatest gain in numbers has been made by the First township. The gain in that township was 14,924, giving a present population of 28,497. The number counted in 1920 was 13,573.

In the Second township a gain of 12,337 was shown. The present population is given at 24,799 against 12,462 of ten years ago.

The greatest percentage gain was made in the Third township. Ten years ago the population of this township was given as 7606. This year a population of 20,404 was recorded. This means the number gained during the ten years as 12,798 or almost 200 per cent.

In the Fourth township the census shows a population of 2182 this year as against 1921 for the 1920 census, a gain of 261. The smallest growth in the county was shown in the Fifth township, which has a population of 1219 in 1920 and 1253 for this year a growth of only 34 persons.

Of the farms listed in the census for this county, the greatest number are in the Third township which shows 276. The First township is next with 183. Then follow the Fourth township with 196, the Fifth with 132, while the Second township lists only 54 farms.

The census for Redwood City was anonunced as 8957, an increase of 122 per cent over the 1920 census, which gave Redwood City a population of 4020.

Dr. Bailey's figures show that Hillsborough counted 1891 in the April enumeration, as against 931 in the census ten years ago, an increase of 103 per cent. Two farms were included in the Hillsborough total.

Daly City shows a gain of 107 per cent, with a total of 7833 in the present count and 3779 in the 1920 census.

Belmont was given a total population of 982 in the census this year. It was not an incorporateed city in 1920.

San Carlos totaled 1132. There was no census in 1920. The Lawndale count was 369.

Atherton, not counted separately in 1920, has a population of 1323, including nine farms, it is stated in this week's notice.

San Mateo's population is given as 13,439, giving it a slight lead over Burlingame, whose figure is set as 13,096. Burlingame's population in 1920 was 4107. San Mateo's figure at that time was 5979.

Menlo Park is credited with a population of 2414. This city was not incorporated in 1920, so no figures are available for comparison.

PLANS FOR PRE- SCHOOL CAMPAIGN ANNOUNCED

Pre-school examinations are to be held at the McKinley grammar school, Wednesday morning, May 28.

The examinations will be in charge of local physicians. The purpose of such work is to find out if the children entering school in August are physically fit, and if defects are found they may be cared for before August 18th.

Some of the questions that parents may ask themselves are:

"Is my child physically fit to enter school?"

"Has he any defects and how serious may they become?"

"Is he growing?"

"Is he gaining in weight?"

"Does he stand correctly or does he droop?"

"Are his eyes normal?"

"Is his skin clear?"

"Does he breathe through his nose?"

"Is his throat in good condition; are his tonsils swollen or diseased?"

"Has he flat feet?"

"Does he eat proper foods that will build up his body?"

"Only a physician can answer such questions and local doctors are willing to do this on Wednesday morning," says Miss Clute, school nurse. The answers will be given to the parents free of charge. The school would like the co-operation of the parents in this work.

All children between the ages of four and six years should be accompanied by their parents or guardian. Please do not bring any child with a contagious disease.

MAN STRIKES CLOCK ARRESTED AS DRUNK

The Leonard & Holt clock on the highway near Whipple avenue is not a striking clock, nevertheless it struck one Tuesday night. The one was Russel Lake, a brick mason, whose car ended an erratic career against the clock standard, breaking a front wheel.

CROSSING GATE ORDERED AT P. A. INTERSECTION

The city of Palo Alto having filed a complaint with the railroad commission against the Southern Pacific Company requesting the commission to order that company to install crossing gates for the protection of the Churchill avenue grade crossing of the Southern Pacific tracks in that city, the railroad commission has issued an order directing the railroad company to protect this crossing with a yielding type of crossing gates, the estimated cost of which will be $2,000.

The commission made its order contingent upon the city contributing the sum of $1,000, and Southern Pacific Company the remainder of the cost of installing these gates, as well as maintaining them after their installation. In the event that the city does not elect to contribute its share of the cost of these gates, the commission provided that it will issue a supplemental order prescribing additional protection for the crossing by means of a double installation of wig-wags, with two-train indicators, giving warning to traffic of the approach of a second train while the first train is on the crossing.

Simultaneous Raids Made on Four Resorts Tuesday Evening Result in Arrest of Six Persons

Simultaneous raids on four places by officers of the Redwood City police department and the sheriff's office Tuesday night, resulted in the arrest of six persons charged with violation of liquor laws.

Sheriff McGrath at the same time led a raid on the Dutch Windmill near the Garfield school on the Middlefield road, and arrested Mrs. Ruby Birdsoll. At a raid on an establishment on Bradford street the Redwood City police, under Chief Collins, arrested Mrs. Jennie Ferrando, who is charged with selling liquor. Varying amounts of liquor were confiscated at each of the places raided, and those arrested were brought here and booked at the jail.

PAIR FILES SUITS, BOTH ASK DIVORCE

Life was not eactly one sweet dream for Mr. and Mrs. Michael Sullivan of San Bruno, if all the allegations made by each party in their suits for divorce are credited.

The Sullivan marital rift made its public bow Wednesday when Sullivan appeared at the court house to file suit for divorce against his wife, Mrs. Desta Sullivan. In his complaint Sullivan charged that his wife blackened his eye and "threatened to kill him for no good reason."

Very few minutes elapsed after the filing of this document until Mrs. Sullivan appeared to demand a divorce from her husband. In her complaint she charged Sullivan with beating her on several occasions. The Sullivans were married in San Francisco in 1920.

Marriage Leads Divorce Here in 4 to 1 Average

The marriage rate of San Mateo county keeps a very substantial and steady lead over the divorces granted here, acording to statistics for the years of 1928-29 and 1929-30 ust compiled by the office of County Clerk Elizabeth M. Kneese.

For the fiscal year of 1928-29 the report shows 198 divorces granted in the county and 822 marriage licenses issued. For the year ending with April of this year the divorces totaled 216 and the marriage licenses totaled 900. The ratio of divorces to marriages appears to eekp about the same every month, except that in June it is stylish to get married, but not so stylish to be divorced, so for this month in 1928 the divorces were only 8 to 88 marriages; while last year the proportion was 12 to 93, the latter being the largest number of licenses issued by the county during this period.

SEQUOIA TO MEET S. M. FOOTBALLERS

By RAY DIXON

Local football enthusiasts will again have a chance to watch Sequoia High pigskin men in a scrimmage when the Cherokees take on the San Mateo High Bearcats on the Indian's gridiron today.

Coaches Dimick and Casanova have a good bunch of scraping youngsters under them this year. Although the squad wil be almost a new squad on the field, the outlook is fair for the local institution. Next year will probably see the return of "Chuck" Delacy, fiery half back pass tosser, Al Cleland, former star quarter back, "Tex" Davis, lineman, and several other fellows who played second string varsity last year. These men will probably form the nucleus of the purple grid machine.

The locals fared well against the Palo Alto Vikings a week ago.

SEQUOIA ATHLETES GRADED BY POINTS

Physical education classes at Sequoia high handed out ratings for boys for the coming school year. Three classes are known at the local school, namely the blues for advanced groups, red for the intermediate class, and white for the elementary division.

Frank Griffin, Ramon Dimick, Jim Eva and Len Casanova, physical education instructors, voted for 68 boys to be advanced to the blue division from the reds of this year, 123 boys received red ratings, and the remainder of the boys and those entering next year will be of the white group.

In order that a boy may be advanced, first his instructor of this year must recommend an advancement. His year's record is shown and then the other coaches vote whether they think he is worthy of promotion or not. Several have been demoted rather than promoted.

The ladies of the Methodist church will hold a food sale at the Piggly Wiggly and Mutual stores today from 10 to 12 o'clock. Besides the cooked fods tohere will be a number of aprons on display for sale.

It is now Grandpa McSweeney, if you please. The genial tax collector is wearing a smile that won't come off. Last Tuesday he was apprised that a lusty young son was born at San Jose to Mr. and Mrs. Byrne McSweeney. The proud father is the only son of the county official. He holds a responsible position in the United States Internal Revenue Department and has a cosy home at San Mateo. A big future is predicted for the heir apparent.

Anderson Trial To Take Place In This County

District Attorney To Begin Proceedings In Case

Antone Anderson, alleged killer of former Game Warden Jack Burke of this county and Allen Curry, game warden of San Francisco, will be tried on a murder charge in this county. This announcement was made Wednesday by District Attorney Franklin Swart, following the failure of the San Francisco grand jury to bring an indictment against Anderson.

The two men were supposed to have been shot in a gun duel on Anderson's boat off the shore near Burlingame. When, however, the San Francisco authorities announced their intention of invoking an old statute which provides that a crime committed aboard a boat may be tried in any county through which the boat has passed on the trip during which the crime was committed, District Attorney Swart announced that he would co-operate with the San Francisco autohrities in the case.

The action of the San Francisco grand jury, however, left the matter rather up in the air, and until the announcement by District Attorney Swart that he would bring action here, it was not known where Anderson would be tried.

Anderson is now in the St. Francis hospital in San Francisco, where he has been since April 10 with five bullet wounds in his body. As soon as he is able to be brought here for trial, proceedings against him will be begun.

Final Chapter in Litigation Ended

The last chapter has been written and the curtain has fallen forever over the McLean affairs. For nearly a quarter of a century the McLeans have appeared in litigation in one form or another in the superior court of this county. Countless legal documents have been filed with the county clerk.

When Mrs. Josephine A. Phelps died years ago, lawsuits began. In her will she provided a trust of $240,000, the income from which was to go to her brothers, Edward and Charles McLean, and two sisters, Mrs. Lord and Mrs. Jack Shroeder, nephews and nieces. A nephew, William Chipman, was named as executor of the vast estate. He was the bone of contention. His every move was fought by the McLeans. Chipman battled valiantly and invariably won. He is a good business man and sought to keep the big holdings in tact for the heirs, while the McLeans wanted the property sold to secure ready money. The trust was attacked but the attempt to break it proved futtile. The supreme court passed on numerous portions of the litigation that was appealed from time to time from the judgment of the lower court.

Chipman succeeded in making some good leases that brought big funds to the estate. The property went up so that the estate instead of being worth $250,000 soared to nearly a million but this did not appease the belligerent disposition of the heirs, the law suits still went on. Chipman still fought his antagonists and with success.

Finally Edward McLean died a little over a year ago. This seemed to stop litigation, at least fewer suits were filed.

Thursday his estate came up for final distribution, but not without a battle could the heirs get their money. A son in Los Angeles assigned his portion of the estate to another, ignoring his wife and children. As it was his separate property the wife had no claim to it. The court distributed the estate according to the petition. But there was the usual battle. It might be said the estate went to distribution in a fight.

The original estate owned by the late Timothy Guy Phelps consisted of all the tract on which the city of San Carlos is built. It stretched from the bay to the mountains and beyond, comprising 200 acres. The Devonshire hills is a portion of the vast holding.

During the Harrison administration Phelps was appointed Collector of Port of San Francisco and during that period he succeeded in having the townsite established and induced the Southern Pacific Railroad Company to erect the stone depot at San Carlos.

The town probably gets its name from the fact that Portola on his return trip from the south on his way to Monterey by the route he had come camped at San Carlos. On leaving Father Crispi planted a cross and named the place San Carlos in honor of the reigning king of Spain at that time.

CONTRACT LET FOR FIRST UNIT OF COAST HIGHWAY

Work to Be Started on Road to Connect Coastside of County With San Francisco and Santa Cruz

The much needed coast road will soon be under construction, the contract for the first unit of the cooked foods there will be a numthis county with San Francisco was let this week to A. J. and J. L. Fairbanks, San Francisco contractors, for the sum of $108,967.91. The Fairbanks' bid was the lowest of five bids submitted to the Joint Highway District at the city hall in San Francisco. The other bids were: Frank Bryant, $129,672.82; Granfield, Farrar & Carlin, $135,898.85; P. L. Burr, $150,710.82, and H. W. Rohl Co., $155,399.

The road improvements included in this contract include the construction of a 25-foot roadway, retaining walls, bridges and other structures of a permanent nature. The road at present will be graded only. Later a paved surface will be laid. The road will follow the right-of-way of the abandoned Ocean Shore Railway line. It will use the tunnel through Pedro Point, and the present contract calls for the re-enforcement of the entrances to this tunnel.

Money for the construction of this road is at present being paid from the general funds of this county, San Francisco and Santa Cruz counties. The cost of the entire project, which will include the completed road from San Francisco to Santa Cruz will cost about $5,500,000, and before this project can be completed it will probably be necessary to issue district bonds. The issuance of bonds for this work is being held up pending a decision on a similar question now before the courts of Ventura county. The decision in the Ventura case will establish whether or not a joint improvement district such as will build the coast road, can legally issue improvement bonds.

The engineering work for the Pedro Mountain cut-off was done by County Engineer George Kneese. Kneese reported that all bids were under his estimate cost of the work. Kneese was present in San Francisco at the opening of the bids, as was also Supervisor Manuel Francis, San Mateo county's representative on the joint highway board.

Cost of Illness In County Mounts To Large Figures

By HOMER L. ROBERTS

United Press Staff Correspondent

SACRAMENTO, May 22. — The high cost of being sick is an increasing problem to the people of Redwood City, who annually lose $1,300,000 in actual cash or loss of income as the result of illness.

This estimate is made as the result of a nation-wide survey by a special committee on medical care under the American Medical Association and headed by the Secretary of the Interior, Ray Lyman Wilbur.

In California the survey was carried on in 150 families in three general localities—San Francisco, Sacramento and San Joaquin Valleys, Los Angeles and Sounthern California.

Four groups were questioned in periods three months apart. They the $1200-a-year families, the $2400-a-year families and those with incomes in excess of $5000 a year.

During the first three months of each year, sickness is more prevalent in California than in the United States as a whole. The San Francisco survey showed 1.2 persons ill per family. California as a whole showed 1.1 per family, and the entire United States .94 per family. For the summer months the report was .74 persons per family and .71 for the entire state.

"The middle class of workers is hardest hit by the high cost of sickness," the report said. "The man of small income who is proud and self-sustaining sends his sick to private hospitals. The very poor use the county institution. The rich can afford the cost."

Average loss from sickness per family was estimated at $567, while the average per person s slightly more than $130. In California the total sickness bill is estimated in the neighborhood of three-quaraters of a billion dollars a year, and in the United States as a whole, $15,729,396 a year.

According to Dr. Homer Folks, secretary of the State Charities' Aid Association, the cost for the nation may be divided as follows: Actual expenditures, $3,729,925,396 a year; loss of future earnings on account of premature, preventable death due to illness, $12,000,000,000, and expenditures for prevention, only $76,290,000.

The cost of being ill cannot be blamed on physicians' fees, Dr. Folk says. The gross average income, he declared, of 149,000 doctors in the country is $5000 a year.

Philharmonic Series To Feature Different Types of Productions

Programs that will be interesting, entertaining and agreeably enjoyable both to the occasional concert attendant as well as to the confirmed symphony devotee is the constant aim of the music committee for the Philharmonic Society of San Mateo County which sponsors the series of concerts presented in the attractive and alluring Woodland Theatre during the summer.

Plans for the fifth season are well under way, according to Mrs. Leonora Wood Armsby, chairman of the music committee and managing director. The five guest conductors have been engaged who will direct the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra and revision of the programs submitted by these directors has about been completed.

A number of very definite determing factors infleunce the decisions as to what numbers are to be included in the several programs to be presented. First and foremost, is the fact that the concerts are given in the open-air theatre. This circumstance tends to greatly enhance the beauty and charm of many compositions, particularly those in which the composer has sought to portray the beauties of nature, or which have pastoral settings as backgrounds for the pictures musically presented.

Many new and interesting novelties and other seldom heard compositions are included in the programs as well as representative selections from the more familiar works of symphonic literature. It is planned also to have each of the conductors include in his programs one or more of the works in the interpretation of which he is known to excel or have achieved unusual distinction. Thus Molinari will again this year present several numbers representative of the Italian school; Gaetano Merola will include selections from the operatic repertoire, and Fernandez Arbos, the Spanish conductor from Madrid who will be heard here for the first time this summer, will offer a program in part typical of his native country as well as some of his own compositions.

Mrs. Fred Taylor and her sister, Miss Lydia Locker, entertained a number of girl friends at their home on Main street, Tuesday evening. Those present were Misses Rutn Whitehead, Pearl Beer, Edith Jordan, Ethel Headley.

Constitutionality of the state law which prohibits possession of salmon during the closed season is attacked in federal court in a supplemental complaint filed before Federal Judge Frank H. Kerrigan. The supplemental complaint was filed by permission of the court and is expected to result in a hearing of the question by a circuit judge and two district judges as required of constitutional questions. It was filed by Attorney Marshall B. Woodworth, attorney for members of the Noyo Fish Association and Sausalito Fish Association. It is contended that the law is unconstitutional because it prohibits possession of salmon caught outside the three-mile limit during the closed season, but admits from other states salmon that has been caught in the same manner. Judge Kerrigan previously ruled in favor of Fish and Game Commission because the question had not been properly raised.

Garin and Elsie Garin and involved property in the Graves district. Only few deeds will be necessary to acquire property for the highway, it was said. Bids for the road construction work will be called before the end of the month, according to County Engineer Howard F. Cozzens.

Delegations from Klamath, Jackson and Josephine Counties in Oregon and Siskiyou and Del Norte Counties in California heard William P. Ellis, Grants Pass, Ore., attorney, present Crescent City as the government's best opportunity in the country for a profitable harbor investment. Ellis' glowing description was made at Crescent City before Major E. H. Ropes, district engineer of the United States army engineer's corps at the opening of the Crescent City harbor hearings. Representatives of inland cities and chambers of commerce backed up Ellis' plea with testimony and requests that the harbor be completed by federal appropriation and that a water outlet be given what Ellis described as "the most remote rich producing area in the United States," from the standpoint of railroad freight rates to consuming centers. A physical survey of the harbor, which, together with the hearing, was requested by the Senate committee, is now being made under the direction of army engineers. An economic survey of potential port tonnage also is being made.

Efforts of the Redwood Empire Association's nine counties highway committee to eliminate many dangerous curves near Sausalito were brought close to fruition when Bert B. Meek, state director of public works, announced plans for a new straight line route from Sausalito to Alto. This will link with the new Alto-San Rafael alignment of the Redwood highway at Alto, giving a straight line artery from Sausalito to San Rafael. The new highway link is designed to be ultimately extended to the bridgehead of the projected Golden Gate span. The new state highway route will cross a portion of Silvo Island and the upper reaches of Richardson's Bay by causeway. At Manzanita, an overpass will span the railroad right of way, the tracks of which it will parallel into Sausalito.

Inauguration of a new construction program for educational institutions had been announced at Sacramento by Vierling Kersey, director of education. Proposed new construction and improvements will aggregate an expenditure of more than $1,500,000. This program includes: Plans under way for the first unit of a complete reconstruction scheme at the California School for the Deaf at Berkeley, to cost $300,000. New science unit, Santa Barbara State Teachers' College, $120,000. Men's gymnasium, San Jose State Teachers' College, $130,000. Administration, science and library units, San Jose State Teachers' College, $735,000. Dormitory, California Polytechnic School, San Luis Obispo, $140,000.

HISTORY'S MYSTERIES

Unsolved Riddles That Still Puzzle Authorities Here and Abroad

The Murder of Grand Duke Peter

SURROUNDED by a cloud of rumor and concealed in a haze of official secrecy, the murder of the Grand Duke Peter, husband of Catherine II of Russia, remains one of the many unsolved mysteries connected with that country, particularly since it is coupled with the personality of one of the most remarkable figures in the annals of royalty—Catherine the Great.

The story of Catherine II, the Semiramis of the North as her contemporaries delighted in calling her, is revolting not only because it is the story of a profligate woman but its deepest horror is to be found in the extreme corruption of the age and people to which the empress belonged. Peter the Great said of his country: "Russia is rotten before she is ripe" and to realize the true meaning of these words and the fullness of their implication, one must study in detail the reigns of Elizabeth and Catherine II. Never was there such a mixture of squalor and magnificence as in the palace of the former. Filth and splendor alternated throughout the royal apartments and the vilest food was eaten from plates of gold.

The first question concerning Catherine, therefore, is whether she corrupted Russia or Russia corrupted her when, as a girl of eighteen, she came from Germany to marry the Grand Duke Peter, heir to the Russian throne. At the time, the Empress Elizabeth, who ruled Russia as a usurper and kept the rightful czar in prison, was morally as corrupt as Catherine became in later years and added drunkenness, gross superstition, cruelty and insanity to her other vices. Yet, at the mere word of this frenzied empress, torture or an exile that meant worse than death, could at any moment be pronounced as lightly and as easily against the heir to the throne as against the poorest peasant.

An even more revolting figure was that of the grand duke himself. "A half-crazed savage in a wig and lace coat," "a swaggering, cursing, brawling, punch-swilling ruffian," "a royal degenerate to whom nothing was sacred save his own wishes"—these are some of the descriptions of the man to whom Catherine was given as wife. Left absolutely alone in such surroundings and with such a husband, there is little wonder that Catherine not only became corrupted but outdid the corruptions in which she found herself.

In daily and almost hourly peril from the insane fancies of the empress, Catherine may well have experienced the deadening effects produced by the loss of all security and, with respect to the question as to whether she might justifiably be accused of the murder of her husband, it is only necessary to refer to the notes of Walisnewski, Polish historian who made a deep study of the facts in the case of this strange household.

"Peter remains the same gross, extravagant and insupportable being that he has always been," says Walisnewski, "'A strange brute streaked with insanity,' according to St. Beuve's expression, and he still knows how to make himself thoroughly odious. Frequently he comes to bed dead drunk and, between hiccoughs, speaks to his wife of his favorite topics—his amours with the duchess of Courland, a hunchback, or with Freiline Voronstof, who is marked with smallpox. If Catherine attempts to go to sleep he pummels her with his hands and feet to keep her awake until sleep overcomes him. He is almost always drunk and becomes more and more mad."

The first step in the downfall of this royal brute was his removal from the throne at the undoubted instigation of his wife, a removal which was followed by his virtual banishment to his country home at Ropcha where he died, officially of "apoplexy" but in reality as the result of a direct plot against his life. The fact that the murderers dared to act as openly as they did and that no attempt was made to prosecute them indicates that Catherine had shown that the permanent removal of the grand duke would not be distasteful to her. The truth about the affair has, however, never fully come to light, for Catherine had no need even to defend herself. Her rule was absolute and she doubtless destroyed any records which would tend to implicate her with one of the not infrequent murder mysteries of the royal families of Europe.

Since religious pilgrims of Persia have been prohibited, for political reasons, from going to Kerbela, which is in Iraq, they must, if possible, visit Meshed or Kum, so they have abandoned the picturesque caravan for auto bus travel. LIGHTS OF NEW YORK

By GRANT DIXON

Getting Service

A young New Yorker recently went to a famous mid-western hospital for a highly specialized operation, and has returned bearing word that, "out among the big things," he has been set down as a mental case. But it comes out even, for he thinks the nurses were a set of mental cases. He found, he said, that his $8 a day nurses would give him no service. If he asked for something, they replied, "You don't want that now." So he devised the scheme of holding a water pitcher high in the air and saying, "If you don't give me what I want I'll drop the pitcher." After the nurses had cleaned up two broken pitchers, his requests were granted, but the hospital officially set him down as a maniac.

Pet Clinic

Every Saturday afternoon, at a building in lower Seventh avenue, may be found a line-up of pet lovers at a free clinic for animals. Here, at the headquarters for the Humane society, come those who can't afford to pay for veterinary services, and those who can—for the reputation of the society's veterinarians is great. The other afternoon I dropped in to see Harry Moran, the superintendent and to get a line on the sort of services dispensed.

Animals, Moran told me, have just about the same illnesses that human beings do. While I was there a woman arrived in her limousine, carrying a Sealyham terrier that was suffering from a case of nerves. And someone brought a billygoat that was suffering from—believe it or not—indigestion. One of the regular visitors is a cat with ingrowing toenails.

One can safely make acquaintances in a small town. Everybody knows who everybody is.

New Game

Ultra smart New Yorkers who have tired of Guggenheim, anagrams and other childish pastimes have devised a new means of amusement. It is the game of larceny. If you are invited to the Smiths for dinner, you snoop about the apartment looking for Smith's wallet or Mrs. Smith's pocketbook. You try to steal $5. You win the game, of course, if you get the $5 without being caught. Then, if you're an ultra smart New Yorker, you return the money a week later, accompanying it with a light jest.

Minor Upheaval

One of the minor upheavals caused by the waistline-and-long-skirt epidemic has been in the window display business. Store proprietors have found that their wax mannequins are completely out of touch with the mode, with their lack of feminine curves. So many a sculptor's work of art has been confined to the junk heap, and the sculptors are working night and day turning out mannequins with fuller figures.

Plans for New National Park

Ashland, Wis.—A group of islands, nestled like precious stones in a setting of natural charm on the edge of one of the most beautiful natural harbors in the world, may become the site of a new national park.

The islands, termed the Apostle group after a band of 12 rollicking brigands who called themselves the apostles and who preyed upon lone coureurs de bois on Chequamegon bay of Lake Superior in the early Seventeenth century, are as wild, rugged and beautiful as in the earliest days of Wisconsin's civilization.

Already the mecca of hundreds of wealthy Americans who maintain summer homes upon Madeline island, the largest of the group, the Apostles are to be made a national park if the efforts of Wisconsin citizens are successful in congress.

A bill introduced by Congressman H. H. Peavey, Washburn, Wis., to establish a park, is pending before congress now.

At La Pointe, the population center of the sparsely settled islands, the first known dwelling in Wisconsin for white men was erected about 1658. Two Frenchmen, Pierre Radisson and Medard Chouart de Crosseilliers, built the log habitation and, according to the history of the region, "were delighted with the country and Radisson described its beauties with an eloquent pen."

"The country was so pleasant, so beautiful and fruitful that it grieved me to see that the world could not discover such enticing countries to live in," wrote the French explorer.

The French remained in the region, colonizing and establishing trading posts, converting the Indians to Christianity and extending the boundaries of the French empire in Wisconsin and Minnesota. The islands remained a center of this work, the trading post at La Pointe, occupying a strategic position in the French fur trade.

Later, when the British obtained the territory, Madeline and the other islands flourished as local centers of the vast Northwest fur trade.

La Pointe at one time was the county seat of Ashland county, losing its identity shortly after the founding of Ashland. It still remains a center of fishing, trapping and has a population of several hundred summer residents.

Several of the islands are uninhabited but possess rare natural beauty in the form of sandstone caves and rock formations, cut into queer and fantastic shape by the waters of Lake Superior.

Times Certainly Have Changed in Forty Years

Kansas City, Mo.—There has been a change of views in the last 40 years. The following item appeared 40 years ago in a Kansas City newspaper: "A peculiar incident happened at the public library today. A young woman reading a periodical at one of the tables had her left leg accidentally (?) exposed so that a pink stocking was visible up to her knee. She was quietly asked to leave."

Women Soldiers Unpopular With Reds

Moscow—Women soldiers are unpopular in the eyes of the Russian government. "Female rifle squads" from the Red army were sent to the villages in discontented districts to protect communal farms from being plundered by opposition peasantry engaged in private enterprise. But, states the Soviet cabinet in an official announcement, "the rifle-women have fraternized with the peasantry."

DIPPING INTO SCIENCE

Not Self-Poisoning

It would seem to us strange that the poison given out by some insects and snakes can be contained in their bodies without harm to them, but this is explained by the fact that every form of life has a different chemical make-up and what is poison to one is not to another.

CHOOSING AN OCCUPATION

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

Jim is eighteen and very much in love—or at least that is what he thinks is the matter with him. There is only one girl in the world for Jim. Being a Presbyterian, he is thoroughly convinced that long before the creation of the world, when the whole universe was in a state of chaos, it was foreordained that ultimately he and Ruth should be created for each other. If by some misstep he had failed to meet her, he is sure that he would have gone through life alone, disconsolate, or if otherwise mated, unhappily and unsuccessfully so. He does not realize that possibly twenty years from now he will have difficulty in recalling her name, and when it does come back to him the memory will not stir in him the slightest emotion. There are whole counties full of girls who would make Jim as happy as Ruth does if he could only meet them and who would make him as happy as the one he will finally marry will do.

There are thousands of young people who feel about their jobs as Jim does about his girl. They have special talents, they think; they are designed by nature to do a certain job and if they should fail to get into that particular position in life it would mean complete and hopeless ruin for them. It is because this idea is so prevalent that we hear so much today concerning vocational guidance—so very much in fact that we might well believe that every man and woman is designed for some specific profession or occupation, and if by any unlucky chance he should fall into something else he will meet his professional waterloo.

I meet young fellows every day who are so much concerned about what they are best fitted for in the way of a life work, so eager to find some branch of learning or education or some occupation that will be suitable and pleasing to them—not to say easy—that they do nothing well or with any particular interest. Fearful of not doing the right thing, they neglect what opportunity is before them.

Now the fact is, as I have watched young people come and go for the last forty years or more, the average normal person could do one sort of work about as well as another if he would only set himself to it. Lloyd was brought up on a farm and would have made a very good farmer if he had set himself to it. As it was he studied engineering when he went to college and was elected to an honorary engineering society in his senior year. He is not an engineer today but a banker who goes about the country telling people who know less than he does how to run their banks. I haven't the slightest doubt that if he had so chosen he could have done just as well in medicine or law as he is doing as a banker.

It seems to me it doesn't so much matter what occupation a man chooses as it does how he goes at what he chooses.

Wife in Poorhouse, Husband Asks Divorce

Great Falls, Mont.—One of the most unusual divorce cases ever filed in a Montana court comes to issue when Solomon T. Niles, eighty-one-year-old Civil war veteran, attempts to secure legal separation from Mrs. Johanna G. Niles, seventy-nine, on the ground of desertion. The wife, forced to live in the poor farm, denies her husband's allegations. In her answer, she asks that her husband be compelled either to take her back or to provide for her.

Man Turns Robber to Pay for Divorce

San Francisco—A "robbing Peter to pay Paul defense" failed Harry Schilder in Superior court here and he must serve one year to life in San Quentin penitentiary.

Schilder, a baker, told the court that he had held up a man in order to pay a divorce attorney fees.

"I had no other way to get the money," he said, "and court had ordered me to pay it."

London.—Could you forget that you had a million dollars?

Someone in England has, and the sum total of fortunes that he and others have "overlooked" amounts to $20,000,000.

This vast sum lies in the hands of the officials of the national exchequer, which every year benefits to the extent of approximately $1,000,000 by the failure of an army of stockholders to claim the interest on their government stock.

That this figure is underestimated is admitted by the officials of the exchequer. It is done so purposely to avoid a flood of spurious claims. The present practice of the Bank of England is to wait until one claimant appears for a hitherto unclaimed stock, and then advertise for all other claimants to the same stock.

One reason that people forget such valuable property is that many stockholders go abroad and are never heard from again. Then there are aged or ailing persons, who forget that they possess stock, and there are the hundreds of persons, who when they die, neglect to leave any mention of their possessions.

A claim recently brought out the fact that an English woman, who had died at Marseilles at the age of ninety-eight, was entitled to $280,000 in stocks, and $100,000 in accumulated dividends, yet she had been constantly borrowing from her relatives.

The finance act of 1921 gives to the national exchequer all dividends unclaimed after five years, although the stocks remain in the holders' names for another ten years.

Animals Poor "Talkies"

Animals are hard to take in sound pictures, according to a statement of Dr. Raymond Ditmars. The lion's roar sounds feeble, camels are difficult and wolves refuse to howl into a microphone. The sound record of a rattlesnake is realistic, as is the cobra's hiss. A major difficulty is getting the animal to respond at all.

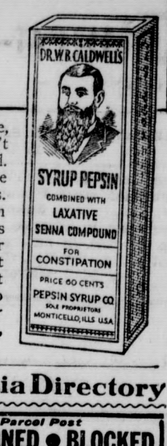
The Prehistoric Blues

Would you like to try this doctor's laxative free of charge?



Every family has occasional need of a laxative, but it should be a family laxative. One that can't form a habit, but can be taken as often as needed. When breath is bad or tongue coated. Or appetite fails. Only a doctor knows the right ingredients. Dr. Caldwell discovered the correct combination years ago. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin combines harmless herbs and pure senna. It starts muscular action and soon corrects constipation. Gently, but surely, it relieves a bilious or sluggish condition. It is mild. Delicious. Effective. All druggists keep this famous prescription ready, in big bottles. Or write Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, Monticello, Ill., for a free trial bottle postpaid.

Inland "Coast Guard"

The falls of the Ohio at Louisville, Ky., are very treacherous. So dangerous are they to human life and shipping that the government for years has maintained there the only inland life-saving station in America. In recent years it has been taken into the Coast guard. In spite of the well-known dangers of the falls, pleasure craft and commercial vessels sometimes find themselves whirling through the eddies toward the fatal rocks. The Coast guard has accomplished many acts of heroism there.

What this Doctor did for Humanity

As a young man the late Dr. R. V. Pierce, practiced medicine in Pennsylvania and was known far and near for his great success in alleviating disease. Finally he moved to Buffalo, N. Y., and put up in ready-to-use form, his GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY, the well known tonic for the blood. This strength builder is made from a formula which Dr. Pierce found most effective when in private practice.

It aids digestion, acts as a tonic and enriches the blood—clears away pimples and annoying eruptions and tends to keep the complexion fresh and clear.

All druggists. Tablets or liquid.

Photographs Radio to Plane

As a result of successful experiments over Berlin, Germany, weather charts are to be photographed and sent by radio to all passenger airplanes in that country. In the tests, it is said, the pilot easily picked up the weather pictures, which were perfectly clear.

Bad News for Burglars

A French engineer has invented an electric dog that jumps, barks fiercely, and even tries to bite when—theoretically—a burglar throws the light of a torch in its face. The invention works on the principle of electric cells which set up a current when a ray of light reaches them. This in turn starts the motor that makes the dog act like a real animal.

Little, but Mighty Good

Col. Pope Hennessy, military attache of the British embassy, was dining in a fashionable Washington restaurant. Rice birds were served. The tiny and delicious morsels lay on slices of toast.

"Poor little things!" said Col. Pope Hennessy's host. "Seems a shame to kill 'em, don't it? How do you suppose they ever murder enough rice birds to make a portion?"

Col. Pope Hennessy turned over an infinitesimal rice bird with his fork.

"I don't know," he said, "unless they use insect powder."

I can do my housework and not get a bit tired. My mother and my sister, also several of my women friends are taking your medicine now, because I believe that this medicine will help any woman that will take it regularly."—Mrs. Lydia Orloski.

"When I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I could hardly do my housework. I was so nervous and weak from Change of Life that I had to lie down very often. I heard about the Vegetable Compound through a pamphlet which was left at my door. I am doing all the housework for a family of four and it keeps me on my feet. I have taken six bottles and I have gained strength and flesh."—Minnie E. Hicks.

A Stand Well Taken

The city council in its action Monday night of advocating the use of Redwood City made cement in all street improvement contracts, took a stand which will meet with popular favor, and will also result in benefit to a local industry, and to the town generally.

Redwood City's future depends in a large measure on its industrial growth. Any encouragement which may be given to the industries which are now located here will be sure to have a favorable influence upon that type of development.

The amount of cement used in Redwood's street improvement program will not of itself add materially to the output of the local plant of the Pacific Portland Cement Company. But the fact that the city council has shown its willingness to co-operate with the cement company by demanding that this cement be used in city contracts will (if you will excuse the pun) cement the friendship between the town of Redwood City and the town's largest industry.

The policy of favoring the local interest, the local taxpayer and the local workman is only fair. Those who help to foot the city's bills should be given the preference when money is to be spent.

The city council has taken a very good stand in requesting that a local product be used and that local labor be given the preference in all contracts. It is to be commended.

Full-Width Roads

Many good roads advocates have believed that it was a good practice to build half of a full-width pavement on farm-to-market roads and later, when funds were available, build the other half.

Experience has proven this to be an expensive method, however, and even a half-width pavement such as is laid on state highways costs more than it is practical to spend on the average fram-to-market, or secondary road.

The American Farm Bureau Federation has been emphasizing the necessity of increasing the mileage of these farm-to-market roads. Good surfaces for such roads can be constructed of suitable materials to make them water and dust proof, at an extremely low cost. Asphalt and road oils are playing an indispensable part in this type of construction.

All-year-round farm-to-market roads provide real farm relief and their mileage should be extended in conjunction with every state highway system.

Look Ahead

"Eat, drink and be merry for tomorrow we die" has become apparently the most popular philosophy of the day. The Epicurean theory of living, broadened to include expensive cars, fine clothes and all modern luxuries, is gaining adherents daily. The great majority of people seem to live with but one object in mind—to crowd every so-called pleasure into an uncertain period of existence.

The result is that many are living beyond their incomes and have become literally slaves, with the automobile companies, clothes shops and others owning their salaries for months ahead. The first of the month, with its flood of unpaid bills among which a pay check all too small must be divided, is an ordeal that is creating wrinkles and gray hairs.

Even the purchases cannot be fully enjoyed for worrying about how they are to be paid for. After the last installment is finally sent in, the articles are usually much worn or "Mrs. Jones" has a later model that one must have in order to keep up. What an existence!

Yet, the system of spending ahead is continually growing in favor. For instance, in the automobile field an analysis of the annual reports for 1929 show that there was an increase of approximately 12 percent in the number of motorists purchasing automobiles on the installment plan. There was a total of 3,441,629 automobiles financed by the 411 companies. This increase would probably be shown in all industries whose products may be used for pleasure and purchased on the installment plan.

No doubt, many families are denying themselves the necessities of life that they may obtain the luxuries.

Too few people look ahead and provide for the future. The nest that once retined the nest egg has been discarded for lack of use. The probability of a rainy day has been forgotten. Beacuse today the hen is laying and the sun is shining, the eggs are eaten and the umbrella thrown away.

What is to be the ultimate result if this or the succeeding generations does not adopt a saner, sounder basis of living? It should be recalled that all pleasure is not gained by acquiring luxuries. They often are a source of grief rather than joy when one cannot in reality afford them. They give only an artificial pleasure at the most and one should pause occasionally and plan for the future. Look ahead and avoid a possible wreck.

Apply the "Montague Test"

The late C. E. Montague, one of the most distinguished of English journalists, believed that all political action should be tested by the same standards as personal conduct. In other words, the same degree of honesty, sincerity and integrity of purpose should govern politics as governs other human actions.

It is doubtful if a better test could be devised. It does not ask for the impossible, but asks only that the politician shall be as free of hypocrisy and dishonesty as the average citizen. Yet, judged by it, many of our American politicians, in high places, fall down hard. Their actions are governed by a desire to hang onto their jobs at any cost. They form a growing bureaucracy, employing its power to still further restrict the liberties and rights of businesses and individuals.

It might be a good idea if American voters would adopt the "Montague Test" when going to the polls.

POLITICALLY SPEAKING

By HOMER L. ROBERTS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, May 21 — (UP) Governor Young's ratification breakfast at the Hotel Senator in Sacramento, where he disclosed some of his campaign plans, was the outstanding political event of the week.

The meeting was not, as might be supposed "packed" with a lost of state employees. It comprised leaders of many northern California counties, many of whom had come a long distance to join in the start-off of the campaign.

The governor was in good speaking form. He virtually flung a challenge to his opponents to make "specific declarations on specific problems" when he announced his intention of confining each of his campaign speeches to one leading state topic.

For example, the governor spoke on highways at the breakfast meeting. Later on he will discuss such subjects as agriculture, schols, crime problems, health, water, taxes, social welfare, finance, reorganization, conservation and veteran affairs.

The present campaign for governor will be different from others of the last decade, for three outstanding reasons:

1. Old-fashioned, personal, voter-to voter campaigning. This means that every nook and corner of the state will be visited. It woudn't be at all surprising if a lot of house-to-house canvassing is done.

2. Use of the airplane in getting about. With the short time left for campaigning, both Mayor Rolph and District Attorney Fitts have indicted they will travel by air in order to keep speaking engagements in widely separated points. The radio, too, will play a large part i the campaign.

3. Lack of over-confidence in any candidate. This is already apparent. Not one of the three believes the fight is won. All re planning whirlwind campaigns, and if the average voter isn't dizzy before it's all over it won't be the candidates' fault.

Most of the close-in fighting will be between Young and Fitts. Rolph has indicated he will campaign largely upon his record as an administrator and his personal popularity, rather than engaging in controversial issues.

But the sparks are already flying between the Young and Fitts camp. On his recent visit to Sacramento, Fitts paid a call to the governor's office but found him out. Later Fitts issued a scathing statement characterizing the newly-built refrigeration terminal at San Francisco as a "makeshift, slipshod substitute more likely to discourage than assist farmers who look to foreign markets."

William Gibbs McAdoo having declined to become the Democratic cadidate for governor, southern California leaders of that party are now said to be groming oJhn Stevens McGroarty, Los Angeles newspaper man and playwright. McGroarty, if he enters the race, would run on a liberal or wet program.

Justus Craemer of Orange, member of the state fair board, was here this week and reported Senator F. F. Merriam gaining in his race for lieutenant governor. H. L. Carnahan will not seek re-election, Craemer predicted.

S. S. F. Man Named On Body to Speed Court Litigation

By ELWOOD SQUIRES
United Press Staff Correspondent

SACRAMENTO, May 22.—A general speeding up of litigation in California courts is being sought by the State Bar in a campaign inaugurated recently, with the motto, "Break the bottleneck of litigation."

In San Mateo county J. W. Coleberd of South San Francisco has been appointed to seek local support for the movement, so that the matter may be presented to the next legislature for action.

Deplorable conditions, where litigation is delayed for three years or longer, is pictured by Charles A. Beardsley, president of the Bar, in describing the situation.

"On the first of this year there were pending in the appellate courts of California 2166 uncalendared cases," Beardsley said.

"With 25 judges working at their present speed, if no new appeals were filed, it would take almost two years to dispose of cases on the back calendar alone. If the present rate of increase continues to exist, in a few years our courts will be so far behind that they will find it impossible to catch up.

"This is a problem in which every taxpayer and litigant is concerned. Last year the actual expenditures of the Supreme Court and District Courts of Appeal were $447,970. Each case appealed cost the litigant $510 for the appeal alone, excluding attorneys' fees and other costs not connected with the briefs or transcripts, not to mention loss caused by the great delay in getting decisions."

Time and energy of attorneys is needlessly dissipated in appealing cases, according to Beardsley.

First, the law of a case must be worked up and most of the facts, before filing pleadings then six months later the facts and the law are thoroughly worked up for trial, repeating all the former work. About six months after trial he writes the briefs, once again repeating his legal work. Finally, two years later, he must argue the case before the appellate cort and completely review again the facts and law.

"This waste of effort should be eliminated and decision of the trial court of District Court of Appeal made final in all possible cases," Beardsley declared.

Japanese Play To Be Shown Tonight

By WAWONA WASHBURN

Tonight, "Ways of Japan," an operetta written by Mr. Otis M. Carrington, music director, will be produced in the Sequoia high school auditorium at 8:15. As has been his custom for some years of presenting one operetta to the people of this district, free of charge, Mr. Carrington has chosen "Ways of Japan" for this year's presentation.

The story tells of the love of two, Mr. Maruyana and O Matu San, and how they are finally married by the old Japanese custom, despite their American views.

The scene is laid in the garden of O Matu San, the daughter of a wealthy Japanese family. Mrs. Elizabzeth Littler, stage crew adviser, has planned an entirely new set and states that the stage will be very colorful.

Kathleen Juday and Joe Paron lead the cast as O Matu San and Mr. Maruyana, respectively. The rest of the cast is as follows: Martha Tinker, Ocho San; Violet Schaller, O Tano San; Rosalie Carrington, Hinai San; Fred Kalenborn, O Hara San, and Joe Judge as Azuchi San.

The chorus of the "Ways of Japan" is: Ruth Bennett, Clarence Taylor, Martha Cummings, Helen Durnam, Elsie Thorn, Catherine Johnston, Leile Swett, Margaret Anthony, Anna Isaacson, Velma Walthers, Pauline Hand, Louie Nelson, Jim Esneault, A. V. Smith, Louis Stacy, George Sepulvida, and Al Cleland.

Dressler-Moran Comedy Team in "Caught Short"

Funny Pair Coming To Sequoia Theatre In Wall St. Crash

"Caught Short," Eddie Cantor's collection of witticisms anent the recent stock market crash, is said to have furnished the inspiration for the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer all-talking comedy of the same title which will open Sunday, May 25, at Dressler and Polly Moran in co-starring roles and Anita Page, Charles Morton, T. Roy Barnes, Edward Dillon, Alice Moe, Gwen Lee, Lee Kohlmar and Greta Gransted, supporting.

Reisner Directed

Charles F. Reisner, best known for his work in connection with "The Hollywood Revue," directed the comedy, with Willard Mack responsible for dialogue and continuity.

Miss Moran and Miss Dressler have the roles of New York City ladnladies to whom the lure of stock speculation brings first unexpected profit and subsequently disaster when the inevitable Wall Street catastrophe occurs. The metamorphosis of the two ladies from their Washington Square habits of cooking and housecleaning to a period of suddenly acquired luxury in a fashionable Atlantic City hostelry makes up what is reported to be their outstanding co-starring vehicle, surpassing by far such previous silent efforts at "The Callahans and the Murphys," and "Bringing Up Father."

Hotel Scene Difficult

An interesting item in connection with the hotel location is the report that it took three days to film a sequence laid in one of the large freight elevators. According to the script, Miss Dressler and Miss Moran have just received the news of the stock market crash and the total loss of their investments. Seeking a place of privacy in which they may console each other, they enter the freight elevator. As hotel atmosphere was essential, the setting could not be built at the studio, and sound cameras, truck lights, etc., were shipped to one of the largest California resort hotels. Here the work of filming the scene was held up, inasmuch as the hotel was unable to grant Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer a monopoly of the elevator, which was needed for the transportation of foods and other articles to upper floors. Consequently just about the time when Riesner was ready to shoot the elevator scene it would be required by the hotel and Miss Dressler and Miss Moran would have to move out. All told, it took exactly three days to complete the sequence.

Two songs will be heard in "Caught Short," a burlesque number sung and danced by Miss Dressler, called "I'm Spanish Now," and "Somebody," which Charles Morton sings to Anita Page.

FINED FOR SPEEDING

R. M. Sable, a bookkeeper, was arrested by Chief of Police Mayer of San Bruno Tuesday evening on a charge of speeding. He appeared before Judge Rudolph Rapsey and was fined $15 or ordered to spend 5 days in the county jail. Yesterday he was in the jail in lieu of the fine.

Sunnyvale Site Leads in Favor During Hearing

Rear Admiral States Sunnyvale To Be Best Site

The controversy between proponents of the Sunnyvale site for the proposed Pacific Coast air base, and those favoring the selection of the site of Camp Kearny, has occupied the hearings of the House Naval Affairs Committee throughout the week.

While a great part of the time has been taken up with the testimony of Admiral Reeves, who signed the lone minority report favoring the southern site, Congressman Arthur M. Free expressed himself as confident that the balance of the testimony would be favorable to the Sunnyvale site.

An advantage was conceded to Sunnyvale by Rear Admiral George C. Day, who preceded Admiral Reeves on the stand. Admiral Day testified that coast defenses at Point Loma, near San Diego, would be of no use in the defense of an air base on the site of Camp Kearny.

"Guns at Point Loma could barely reach the Camp Kearney site," said Admiral Day, "so that the enemy could lie off to the north and shell it without interference from Point Loma batteries."

"Sunnyvale would be practically impossible to bombard from the ocean, wouldn't it?" asked Chairman Fred Britten.

"It would be less likely to be bombarded than Camp Kearney," was the answer.

Kiwanis Club In Big Joint Meeting

One of the largest meetings yet held by the Redwood City Kiwanis club was held Wednesday noon. The meeting was a joint meeting of the Redwood City club with the Alameda Kiwanis club. In addition to the members of the two clubs, members of the local club were accompanied by their wives. A large delegation of members from the Palo Alto club was also present, as well as several from the San Mateo-Burlingame club.

One of the chief features of the meeting was the singing of the "Three Mucketeers" of the San Francisco club. These three men form a singing team which has sung before clubs in all parts of the state. The team is composed of Merville Yetter, Harrison Coles and Bob Williams. They were accompanied by Paul Burroughs, also of the San Francisco club, on the piano.

Among the guests of the club was William Saylor, of the Alameda club, maker of Miss Saylor's well-known chocolates. Each table was presented with a box of these chocolates by the Alameda Kiwanian.

FOOD SPOILAGE RESULT OF HEAT

Producing and marketing food products ocupy the working days of almost half of the American people, according to Dr. Martha Manning, refrigeration expert.

"Huge sums of time and money are spent to put food-stuffs into kitchens in fresh, attractive, palatable and safe condition," Dr. Manning state. "And then what! Milk sours on the window sill, asparagus wilts in the back entry, oranges shrivel in the cellar, and the strawberries mildew before they are used.

"Many housewives treat perishable foodstuffs as though they were so many lumps of coal. The window sill, the back entry and the cellar as storage places for perishables are as out-of-date as the first horseless carriage.

"Deterioration and spoilage of such foods as meat, milk, butter, eggs, cooked foods, fruits and vegetables are due largely to the multiplication of bacteria, which can be retarded if those foods are stored at relatively low temperature. Milk, butter, meat, fish and cooked foods should be held at temperatures not over 50 degrees F. and fresh fruits and vegetables at temperatures not over 55 degrees. If the temperature in your refrigerator of the compartment directly below the ice is 15 degrees and the warmest part 55 degrees, with an average temperature of 50 degrees, you are assured of excellent food protection.

"Covered enamel and glass dishes are handy to keep foods in and can be used for heating the foods. They can be stacked one upon another and thus save space without hindrance to the circulation of icefreshened air."

BAY SHORE CUT-OFF WORK NOTED

Careful driving is necessary on the Bayshore cut-off at a point about eight miles south of San Francisco, where a steam shovel and numerous trucks are at work constructing a new fill and cut, states the touring department of the National Automobile Club. The balance of the road is in good condition.

PALA ESTATE

Jas. T. O'Keefe, executor of the last will and testament of Peter Pala has filed his first annual account and report showing the value of the estate to be over $100,000. Peter Pala was a pioneer hotel man of South San Francisco and accumulated considerable property there. The Bayshore highway passes thru portions of the property and has made it valuable. The heirs are two daughters, one living in this country and the other in Switzerland.

Menlo Park

The Menlo Park Cleaning and Dyeing Company on Doyle st has purchased the Redwood City Dyeing and Cleaning works. The two concerns will be merged, with headquarters at Menlo Park. This is peaceful penetration, a Japanese now owning both establishments.

Chief of Police Love and his two trusted assistants raided the Oak Grove Villa Monday night and after a thorough search of the hotel found no liquor. They did, however, discover a half gallon of whiskey in one of the upper rooms, belonging to one of the boarders. The lodger was arrested and the liquor confiscated. The man is to be sentenced next week.

John Doyle has bought the Alpine ranch, comrising several hundred acres. Mr. Doyle is to erect a summer home on the property and is to otherwise improve the holding. There is an abundance of water on the ranch and it is well wooded, just the place to spend a quiet rest after the cares of the day are over.

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Witham have leased their home, with an option to buy, on Oak Grove avenue near Pine street, to a San Francisco business man, who will be down today. The Withams will move to their ranch at Los Altos. They will also maintain an apartment in San Francisco.

Edward Campbell has leasod his auto camp on the crenrooffi.omfwy auto camp on the corner of El Camino Real and Valparaiso avenue to Mr. Barker of Washington for a period of ten years. The lessee is to improve the property. The Campbells have rented an estate at Atherton and will reside in that aristocratic community.

Menlo Parlor N. S. G. W. and the Native Daughter Parlor will hold a joint picnic at Portola Park on Sunday, July 13. This is to be a gala event, in which the sons and daughters of the bay counties will participate. It is to be a joyous occasion.

J. P. Ahlert, lessee of the Beltramo building on the state highway between Cambridge street and Partridge avenue, has sublet a part of the big structure to two tenants. One-fourth of the lower floor has been leased to Clarence Genacy for a machine shop, the other portion to be used for Ahlert's plumbing business. In the upper story 2500 feet of floor space has been leased for a long term to Robert Irwin for an airplane assembling plant. Here, too, gliders will be built, and tested. Mr. Irwin is an expert in his line and hopes to establish a large plant here. He is the son of Dr. Irwin, one of the leading physicians at the base hospital. This establishment will bring a number of workmen to Menlo Park and vicinity. This is the first time in the history of the building that it has been entirely occupied.

We, the people of Menlo Park, should be very proud of the fact that our local citizen, Jack Parsons, is constructing one of the finest miniature golf courses to be found on the Pacific Coast. The "links" will be known as the Jaclen Golfun Course, and is located at 568 Waverley street (or about one-half block south of University avenue on Waverley street) in Palo Alto. The course is commendable for the clever arrangement of the eighteen holes, the size and shape of the fairways and greens, and the very excellent lighting system. No knowledge of golf is required to play this game, and it is real wholesome out-door fun for everyone. Let us hope that Mr. Parson's first business venture will prove to be a big success.

Mr. and Mrs. Jay T. Cooper have moved to Redwood City, having exchanged their pretty home here for a ten room mansion in White Oaks, owned by the Koff Realty Company. The old home in Menlo Park was erected in the latter eighties by Dr. J. H. Stallard, at one time one of the most eminent physicians in San Francisco. He bought the site and directed the building of the home, which was replete with all modern conveniences looking to the comfort of the occupant. The aged doctor was finicky and particular about the workmanship on the building. Everything had to be done to his liking. When it was completed it was a model dwelling, fit for the gods. He was not long here when his wife passed away. He soon married a young English woman who presided over the mansion in queenly fashion, entertaining friends and relatives from across the sea. After the death of the physician she lived in the home for several years. The choicest furniture and bric-a-brac lent charm to the wide halls, large rooms and low ceilings as well as adding comfort to the occupants. Mrs. Cooper was a social leader in Menlo Park and her departure is a matter of deep regret.

Mayor W. H. Weeden and K. L. Martin left yesterday for Santa Cruz to attend the state convention of the Exchange Club. They represent the local club. It was learned last evening that Weeden is slated for an important office in the convention.

Constable Grill, Under Sheriff Farrell and Deputy Sheriff Meeks, raided a bootleg joint on the Alameda, owned by Don Coe. The officers found 22 flasks of whiskey and gin. The offender was arrested and brought to Redwood City, where he awaits trial. Coe recently conducted a restaurant here.

City Judge Patrick had his hands full Monday meting out justice. There were thirty violators of the traffic laws present to receive their "jolt." A few were dismissed but the greater number were fined from $2.50 to $5, principally for speeding.

Mayor Weeden and K. L. Martin represented Menlo Park at the Rose Festival at San Jose last Saturday. The city manager of the Garden City is a school mate of Martin's, who showed the two visitors every courtesy, entertaining them royally and demonstrating to them the good points of city management. The manager, Charles B. Goodwin, wrote the mayor yesterday thanking him for his co-operation in making the Fiesta a success it was.

The city council in special session Wednesday revoked the action of the former council that stopped the work on the Gurnsey building on the corner of Middle avenue and University Drive, alleging that the foundation was laid contrary to the provision of the city ordinance and permitted the builder to go on with the contract. All the members were present at the meeting with the exception of Blake. There was a unanimous vote on the question that has been a bug-bear to the council, these many months. The building, when completed, is to be occupied by a negro family, hence the bug-bear.

Jack Collins, the garage man, has purchased the Williams property on Oak avenue. He is to improve the holding and beautify the spacious grounds.

The final distribution of the W. J. Murray estate took place in the Superior court yesterday at Redwood City, Judge Buck accepting the final account and granting the petition of distribution asked for by the heirs. The estate was appraised at $33,104.02. The estate consisted of personal property comprising cash in the sum of $2,500, two promissory notes valued at $1200, a contract to purchase real property and certain jewelry of nominal value. The real estate consists of six parcels of land located in Menlo Park, including the postoffice block appraised at $21,000. James E. Murray, Thomas L. Murray and Mrs. Mercedes Murray O'Rourke, nephews and nieces of the decedent, were left the entire estate with th exception of two bequests, $1500, to George Murray and $1,000 to John Murray, nephews. The deceasod was one of the pioneers of this locality. He was born on the site of the old St. Dennis church that has long since passed out of existence.

Big Basain Oiling Operations Finished

Oiling operations on the Big Basin road between Saratoga Summit and the San Lorenzo Creek road, leading south to Boulder Creek, have been completed, but the road between San Lorenzo Creek and the Big Basin is still closed to traffic, reports the touring department of the National Automobile Club.

The completion of this road makes it possible to drive via a direct route to Santa Cruz, using the Skyline boulevard from San Francisco to Saratoga Summit, thence over the newly oiled road to the San Lorenzo Creek Road, and via that road to Boulder Creek, paved to Santa Cruz.

Decrease Shown In Licenses Of Realty Brokers

140 Fewer Brokers In This County Than In 1928

By ELWOOD SQUIRES
United Press Staff Correspondent

SACRAMENTO, May 22.—California real estate deals can be handled through 51,583 licensed agents in the state, according to a survey just completed by the real estate department.

San Mateo county had 361 licensed realtors last year, compared with 501 in 1928, the report shows.

A tendency toward a decrease in licenses issued last year was noted by the department. In 1928 there were 50,910 agents, giving 1929 an increase of but 600 over the previous year.

The general drop throughout the state was compensated for by Los Angeles county, which had an increase of more than 3000 licenses in 1929. Most of the other counties had decreases ranging from one to two, with Alameda county heading this list with a loss of 600.

Five California counties have no need of realtors, judging from the department report. They are Alpine, Amador, Inyo, Mono and Sierra. The last three named had one agent each in 1928, but all three gave up their licenses in 1929.

"Southern California is the paradise for real estate dealers," declared T. A. Kelly,chief deputy in the department, analyzing the report.

"Take Los Angeles county as an example. With 33,510 licenses, more than half the state is located there. If it were not for the increase of 3000 there last year we might have had a decrease in the total.

"A more stringent examination last year than in 1928 is partly responsible for the small increase. Many agents who could not pass the examination were forced to give up their licenses. This naturally has resulted in some complaint, but our standards are considerably raised."

California has one of the most exacting laws of any state in the Union for those who would sell real estate, Kelly said, and many other states have taken it as a model.

"Although we have had many compliments on our law, I was informed recently that Texas has refused to copy it into their statutes," Kelly stated. "It seems that the subject under debate in the Texas legislature, when some member arose and shouted, 'If this is the law they use to run their real estate business in California, we dont w'ant it!' That's the first rejection of which I have heard, and I suppose it is the exception that proves we have an excellent law here."

Week-Day Skyline Boulevard Warning

Motorists driving over the Skyline boulevard on week days are cautioned to obtain late reports on the road, where oiling and graveling operations are under way, the road will be closed to all traffic, reports the touring department of the National Automobile Club.

Work is now being carried on between the San Bruno road and the Millbrae road. This will probably be finished this week, and the next stretch south of there closed.

FOUR INJURED IN CRASH AT BELMONT

Four women were injured in an automobile wreck near Belmont Tuesday afternoon. The accident occured on the highwy just north of the northerly limits of Belmont, when Miss Beatrice DeWolf, 130 Seville street, San Francisco, swung her car into a ditch beside the highway.

The wreck occured, witnesses told police, when Miss De Wolf attempted to pass a truck. When abreast of the truck, she saw that she would crash head-on into an on-coming car, and swerved into the ditch.

In addition to the driver, who sustained severe cuts and bruises, the injured were: Mrs. E. Crawford, 130 Seville street, San Francisco; Miss Anna Nelson, 115 Seville street, San Francisco; and Mrs. Mildred Seiller, 122 Seville street, San Francisco.

The most severely injured was Mrs. Crawford, who was badly crushed, and suffered possible internal injuries.

Time from Phone Company; Service That Is Popular

Every day a quarter of a million Pacific Coast people ask the telephone company for the correct time. It is estimated that most of the quarter million are children, many of them school children, trying to save a tardy mark.

Others of the quarter million want to know the hour, to catch trains, kep dates, and put the steak on for diner.

Every clock ticks throughout the twenty-four hours, on the average, means 3 telephone calls for the time of day. The average is one call for every 6 telephones. In this city 1200 calls are made daily.

During the hour of rising in the morning, from 7 to 8, when people check slow watches for work or school time, the calls pour into the coast exchanges at the rate of 14 each second.

In the 14 months since time service was opened in five states by The Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. time calls more than quadrupled in number from 57,000 to 250,000 daily. All communities in the company's territory have shown a rapid increase in the popularity of time giving.

Thus, L. C. Brown, manager of the company points out, the west coast has made a close part of its daily life the time of day service begun on February 1of last year.

It is believed that the telephone time service is used more widely on the Pacific Coast than anywhere else in the United States.

For example, about one-sixth of the time calls in San Francisco, more than 5,800, are made between 7 and 8 a. m.

When school vacations arrive, especially in summer, the total time calls drop by thousands, proving again the influence of the school children on time service.

The total time calls daily by cities are as follows: Los Angeles, 100,323; San Francisco, 34,242; Seattle, 27,722; Portland, 21,373; Oakland and East Bay, 16,415; Spokane, 7,331; Pasadena, 7,201; Sacramento, 7,440.

New Daylight Train Pearl Grey in Color

Painted "pearl gray" from observation end to locomotive, the "Daylight" flier of the Southern Pacific coast line has just made its bow as the most distinctive train in the United States.

Already the fastest train in the West, the popular San rFancisco-Los Angeles daytime limited now enters a special class by itself as a result of its special paint job.

Coincident with the color scheme, the train was provided with improved equipment throughout, according to announcement here by L. R. Dains, agent for the railroad company.

Included in the train's makeup is the latest club car featuring a separate lounge and smoking compartment for women. This new piece of equipment is matched in comfort by bucket seat coaches, reserved seat cars, diner, all-day lunch car and a specially-built observation car with full-width rear door and extra large windows.

The Daylight was put in weekly service in 1922 and given a daily schedule the following year. Since then it has won great favor with travelers and now carries more tourists than any other train in California, according to Agent Dains.

The Chinese are excluded from the United States by the Chinese exclusion act of 1882. The "gentlemen's agreement" of 1907 excluded the Japanese from immigration into the United States. THAT YOUTHFUL SPIRIT WON OUT

(© by D. J. Walsh.)

ELLA ROCKWELL and her sister, Mabel, were not eating breakfast together. They never ate breakfast together when they had quarreled. Each bore her tray to a remote corner and chewed in silence, like puppies growling over their bits of bone.

The postman rattled the lid of the mailbox. They glared at each other, then Ella, assuming her prerogative of being the older, sailed out and got the mail. She opened the letter, stared, gasped. Astonishment loosed her tongue.

"It's from Brother George's girl, Nita. She's coming to see us."

"Nobody's been here for the last ten years," retorted Ella.

"Good land. There's a car stopping here!" exclaimed Mabel.

It was an old red roadster. From it stepped a girl in a plaid coat. She bounded to the door.

Ella answered the challenging ring.

"We never buy anything of peddlers," she said severely.

"Well, I happen to be your niece, Nita Rockwell," the girl said airily. She flung her arms about Ella's thin, stiff form and kissed her.

Nita flung her hat in one direction, her coat and scarf in another. Ella immediately picked them up.

"We just got your letter," Mabel said lamely.

"Oh, did you? I though maybe I'd get here ahead of it. You see I bought that car last night. Paid $30 for it. A bargain. I came from the next town in seventeen minutes."

"It's sixteen miles!" Ella stared at the girl's thin, healthy, spirited face.

Nita grinned. "I stepped on it. Now then, could I have a bite of some kind? Anything will do. I'm not particular."

They hastened to feed her.

In an hour she possessed them and their house. Echoes of her young voice, her light footstep, filled every nook and corner.

After food and her short rest Nita rose. "Guess I'll take a look round the town," she remarked, casually.

She came to lunch, but she was late. After lunch she made the same explanation, and set forth again. After dinner she insisted on all hands going to the movies. She paid for the tickets herself. After the movies she curled up in an easy posture and read a book. The title of that book mystified Ella. It was "Seven Rules for Salesmanship." Midnight came. The sisters wouldn't go to bed; they fell asleep in their chairs. Then Nita came out of her study and took pity on them.

Next morning—"Guess I'll go out and take a look around the town." Nita grinned. But Ella pointed a stern finger at a chair.

"Sit down there. You'll not stir one inch out of this house till you tell me what you are up to."

"You are waking up!" Nita laughed. "I was waiting for you to show interest, ask me some questions. Honestly, dear aunts, I'm not engaged in any nefarious occupation. I'm simply earning my living. I sell the Gwendoline Beauty Kit."

Mabel bounced. Ella turned white. Drops of agony stood out on their long upper lips.

"You're peddling? My brother's daughter peddling!" groaned Ella.

"It isn't peddling, auntie. It's a mere case of of supply and demand. In this town," Nita giggled, "the demand almost exceeds the supply. Let me show you my order book." She drew it from her pocket. "I've got to long distance for a quick delivery of mere goods. And don't you want to see the kit?" She sprang from the chair.

Ella waved aside the proffered revelation. "Don't—don't! You sicken me. My brother's daughter!"

"But dad didn't leave me a cent," Nita said earnestly. "Gwendoline has proved to be a friend in need. She put me through college last year. All the girls bought of me. They got their money's worth, too. Gwendoline—"

"Don't speak that word again in my presence. I never was so mortified in all my life. What will Mrs. Swarthout say?"

"Swarthout?" Nita peeped into her order book. "Mrs G. N Swarthout? She bought two kits, one for herself and one to send to her daughter. Miss Mayhew bought one. Mrs. Benny, Mrs. Pollock, Miss Angeline Grant—" She rattled off names that made the sister's eyes distend. "I've got a date this minute with the Misses Murray. I ought to be going. Listen, dears, if you object to my doing this while I am in your house I can get a room at Mrs. Gordon's—"

Ella gave a kind of shriek. She hastily left the room. Mabel went after her. Nita shook her head, gave up the mystery and went forth to sell more kits.

Next morning she couldn't rise from bed. "I've picked up a cold in my travels," she said philosophically. "I'll just stay in bed and take a half teaspoonful of soda in hot water now and then and I'll soon be over it. Only—I promised Mrs. Gordon to demonstrate at her house this morning. She's asked in a few friends. If I don't go I shall lose my sales." Nita burrowed her leaky nose in a handkerchief. Her chin quivered, tears rolled down her cheeks. She flung all her appeal into a glance at Mabel. "Anybody but a high nosed person like you would take pity on me and keep that appointment for me."

Mabel looked miserable. "You don't understand, Nita. Julia Gordon won't speak to me. She wouldn't have me in her house."

"Yes she would. She told me all about it. She's been ready to make up any time these three years."

"She was my best friend once—"

"She is yet—if you'll let her be, Aunt Mab! Please! Here's your chance to make me happy and regain your old friend."

"Ella wouldn't let me."

"Leave Aunt Ella to me."

Ella had gone to the grocery after onions. When she came back Mabel was gone. A dramatic scene was enacted in Nita's room, during which the girl somehow found a tender spot in Ella Rockwell's hard heart.

Mable came back triumphant, excited, joyous.

"It was the most fun I ever had!" she panted. "I sold to every one of them. I wish I could go right on. To think of all the years I've pinched and starved and froze because I'd been taught it was genteel to be idle! And, Nita—I want one of those kits for myself. They're the loveliest things I ever saw in all my born days."

Nita clapped her hands.

"Take that one on my bureau. And use it!" she said

Half an hour later Ella peeped into her sister's room. Mabel was putting the finishing touches to a picture; she had become an artist, and the canvas was her own face.

"Oh, Ella!" she cried girlishly. "You must use these things! They're wonderful! And Nita's going to turn this territory over to me when she leaves here!"

"So she says." Ella drew her hand out from behind her back. In it was a kit similar to Mabel's.

Railroad Run by Army

One of the few narrow-gauge railroads now in active service in the United States is run by the army at the infantry school reservation at Fort Benning, Ga. The road was constructed in 1920 to handle passengers, supplies and material over the 99,000 acre reservation. At that time, says Popular Mechanics Magazine, the roadbed was rough and unsettled, the equipment and motive power were in crude condition and wrecks and engine failures were frequent. Improvements have been steadily made until now the system has the latest type of equipment and is efficiently operated under the direction of the fort's quartermaster department.

Weeks of Varying Length

In some places where a market is held every third day the week is three days long; in districts where a market is held every eight days there is an eight day week.

Persia, Java, Celebes, Malaysia and New Guinea have five-day weeks. The Muyscas of South America have a three-day week. The Chibchas have a four-day week.

African weeks vary from three to eight days. Europe and the western hemisphere have a seven-day week.

Spinster's Will Brief

That all spinsters are not loquacious was proved by the will of Miss Margaret Preston of Monterey, North Wales, in disposing of an estate valued at $1,753,000. The entire document, including her full name, address and description, the appointment of the executor with similar details, the disposal of the property and full attestation clause, was contained in 141 words.

Water From "Holy Well" One Source of Cholera

Superstition is perhaps the greatest hindrance encountered by physicians who try to introduce scientific medicine into semi-civilized countries. Col. Edward L. Munson in Hygeia Magazine tells in fictional form a true story of an outbreak of cholera in the Philippine islands in which a typical superstition played the leading part.

The terrible plague had spread throughout the islands and whole districts had been decimated. The health officers knew the epidemic had a common source, probably from polluted water. They set out in a driving rain one night to find it. First through the poor part of the city, then toward the beach they went.

Far out in the mire left by the receding tide groups of natives were milling about. The two doctors hailed a native hurrying toward the beach and asked where he was going.

"To the holy well of San Roque," he answered. "It is a miracle of God. Three days ago his temblor shook the earth. Then a spring of fresh water broke out here on the beach at Tondo, sent of heaven to protect from cholera. At the high waters its freshness bubbles among the salt. Now it is bare. I go."

The health officers found the throng clustered about a pipe of earthenware, from which a sluggish stream of water flowed. A bit of digging revealed the source. The earthquake had broken a pipe and the water was bubbling up from a broken sewer. The fluid which the natives believed was protecting them was the means of spreading destruction.

Hawaii Healthful

The temperature of Hawaii is very equable. The average in the lowlands is 70 degrees for January, 78 degrees for July. The extremes are 89 degrees and 54 degrees Fahrenheit. At Honolulu the rainfall averages only about 32 inches per year, but the humidity is considerable. On the whole, the climate is considered healthful and equable.

Starts Last Athletic Campaign

RUSS BERGHERM, the first nine-letter man to graduate at Northwestern university in a number of years, started his last athletic campaign at Evanston when the tennis team of which he is captain opened its season against Loyola university.

For the last three years Bergherm has won three letters each year as a member of the football, basketball and tennis team. Ordinarily an athlete confines his activities to two sports only, but Bergherm's versatility enabled him to star in three.

Last fall he starred on the football team, finishing the season as high scorer in the Big Ten and being selected by most experts as the All-Conference fullback. Following the grid season he took up basketball and was regular forward on the Wildcat squad all season.

Coach Arthur Nethercot of the tennis team is depending on the big fellow to carry most of the work this spring, as his size and speed make him one of the most valuable men on the squad. Although it's a far call from playing fullback on the football team to wielding a tennis racket, Bergherm seems to be capable of performing the task.

Russ Bergherm.

Bert Riel, who also played on both the football and basketball teams, is another star on the tennis team this spring. Riel was substitute quarterback on the grid eleven and played regular guard on the cage squad.

Besides these two men Coach Nethercot will have three substitutes from last year's squad in John Curtiss, Gil Sheldon and Cliff Nelson. In addition several sophomores are also making a strong bid for a place. They are Bruce Brayton, Joe Euans and Bill Fuller.

YOUNG MR. SUHR FITS FIRST BASE

Fielding and Hitting Seems Entirely Satisfactory.

This young Mr. Suhr, the first basing gentleman of the Pittsburgh Pirates, really looks as though he fits the big league picture.

Of course, it is early to predict anything accurately about a newcomer in the majors. But the boys have been giving the Pittsburgh giant a pretty thorough going over and he's still way ahead of most of them.

His fielding seems to be entirely satisfactory and he appears to have plenty of baseball sense on the field. It is his hitting, of course, that is getting the closest scrutiny.

Suhr stands about the center of the batter's box—hitting left-handed—with his feet well spread and his body and bat poised. So far he has hit to all fields and does not concentrate on one kind of ball.

Charlie Root recently had him swinging on fast ones inside and it began to look as though that was his weakness. But when Fred Blake and the other boys tried that they found the hitter letting them pass with such good effect that it netted him a total of five bases on balls in six trips to the plate. The other time he struck out on a wide curve ball.

Fifty miles an hour was predicted for last season and the guess missed fire by only a fraction of a mile.

It is commonly reported that speeds in excess of a mile a minute have been attained by three different motor manufacturers in secret tryouts.

Connie Mack is a firm believer in blood lines and heredity. In a game recently against the Yanks Bob Grove was yanked and replaced by Glenn Liebhardt, Jr., the son of Glenn, Sr., who pitched major league baseball years ago. Glenn, Jr., hadn't pitched in the big show before, but managed to turn the New Yorkers back.

"I saw his father pitch many a time and he had lots of courage," said Mack. "I knew that Glenn's boy could be no worse than his father." Liebhardt is a cousin of Dutch Henry, now with the White Sox. The elder Liebhardt taught Dutch and Glenn, Jr., a few tricks in the art of pitching.

One of the first heroes of the conference baseball season was Schneider, Wisconsin's sub first sacker, who in his only two times up connected for hits at Illinois, the second being a homer in the ninth that won the game for his team 4 to 3. Schneider was fortunate on his homer, however, as the Illini outfielder ran in on the ball instead of playing it safely, and it got by him. It should have been held to a double.

Seeing Big League BASEBALL

By BILLY EVANS

Sportswriter, Big League Umpire and General Manager of the Cleveland Indians

"You can't beat thim hours, me bye, three to five." That was a favorite expression of the late Tim Hurst, when an umpire, after an unusually tough day, would express his disgust with his job.

Hurst was a pictureque character; the game probably will never know another just like him. He had a keen sense of humor, withering sarcasm that he used to advantage on the protesting players, and the courage of a spartan. Tact and diplomacy are supposed to be most necessary assets of an umpire. Tim didn't think much of either, unless gifted repartee, in which he seldom came out second best, might be so construed.

Perhaps no person connected with baseball plays a more important part in what may be termed the "artistic" success of a ball game than the umpire, yet he is merely regarded in the light of a necessary evil. Only when he fails to show up for a ball game is his worth appreciated. Aside from being a necessary evil the umpire is baseball's greatest alibi, either from the viewpoint of player or fan. If a player gets the worst of a close decision, if he is called out on a perfect third strike, he can attempt to shift the responsibility by protesting the umpire's decision. And what a relief it is to some fans after a defeat to recall how differently things would have been had the umpire called the ball hit down the third base line fair instead of foul. Fandom was a unit in regarding it as fair, but the umpire thought otherwise. The twe runs that should have scored on that hit would have won the ball game.

I have said the umpire is a most important asset from an artistic standpoint; however, only a limited few umpires have had anything to do with the financial end of the game. Star players like Ruth, Johnson, Hornsby, Foxx and others of that caliber, pack them in at the gate, but it is doubtful if any umpire today is ever responsible for a single person passing through the turnstile, unless it be some friend of his with a complimentary ticket.

The announcement that Walter Johnson was to pitch was always a magnet. If Babe Ruth is on a home-run rampage the fans jam the stands to see him in action. The year that Ruth broke the home-run record by clouting sixty circuit swats, he broke and re-broke attendance records at every American league park a half-dozen times. The fans care not who umpires just so long as he does a good job of it. If he is satisfactory he draws silence, never applause. It is only when fandom disagrees with him that he receives any vocal consideration at all.

Much has been written about the competency and incompetency of the umpires, probably the last has been more widely heralded. Don't get me wrong, for I feel that the fans do like to see a game well handled by the umpires. However, I have always believed if there came a time when every decision of the umpire were considered correct, and the games always perfectly umpired, that baseball would immediately lose one of its strongest selling points. For it is really surprising the pleasure a lot of people get out of believing that had the umpire not repeatedly erred in his rulings, the home team would have been victorious. The umpire is a favorite alibi and always will be.

On this point the status of the umpire has been much improved in the last fifteen years. The attitude taken by the newspaper writers, who cover the ball games, has tended to make the work much easier. In the old days the alibi was much favored in explaining defeats through the press, and the umpire wasn't overlooked as a target. Today it is much different.

Friel Became Dutchman to Please Customers

When Business Manager Billy Friel of the St. Louis Browns was playing with Milwaukee his name was changed to August by a shrewd club owner who knew that such a monicker would make a great hit with the German fans who came to watch the Brewers.

"I made an average of about two errors a day," said Friel recently, "but my misplays were all overlooked."

"Hit der pall to Oogust—he'll get dem," was the friendly chorus shouted Bill's way.

One day, as Friel tells it, he had an especially bad afternoon. He had fanned a couple of times, and had made some bad throws to Jiggs Donahue, who was playing first base.

Presently a loud voice arose from the third base section. "Some fine stuff you pull, hey?" came the shout. "A fine Cherman, yes. How about your brudders, Mike, Pat and Dinney? Yaw, ha."

It was raus mit 'em for Bill thereafter.

FOOD SPOILAGE RESULT OF HEAT

A recent publication of the Bureau of Home Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture warns careful housewives that dry cold robs vegetables of precious vitamins, juices and flavors. Food properly refrigerated is an important matter to children in the hot days of summer.

Dr. Martha Manning, home refrigeration expert, gives a few pointers on how best to keep perishable foods:

"Immediately upon delivery, place milk, cream, butter and cottage chees in the compartment just under the ice in a side-icing refrigerator or in the center of the top shelf of a top-icer, where the air, falling straight from the ice, is coldest. Dairy products are the most perishable of foods, keeping best at temperatures not over 45 degrees—temperatures easily held in the milk compartments of modern well-constructed and well-iced refrigerators."

High School Notes

By RUDOLPH KALENBORN

Andy Bright was elcted president of Iota Zeta, the service club of Se-Sequoia yesterday, for the first semester of the school year 1930-1931.

Dick Morgan was chosen vice-president and Al Cleland secretary-treasurer.

Holding the office this year, Bill Byrd was re-elected sergeant at arms, the officer who collects the fines assesed on the members during the meetings.

"Many members will have to be elected in the club next year because over half the club are seniors that graduate june 6," stated Andy Bright.

Today the president, Charles Clancy, will meet with the committee to decide when the initiation for the the five new members will take place. It was scheduled to occur at the Kalenborn's camp near Pescadero, but the trip was cancelled because not enough of the members could go.

Featuring close races for president, vice-president, and secretary the election for next year's senior class officers was held at the high school this week. The Junior elections had been held a few days previous.

Andy Bright was elected Senior president when he polled eight votes more than his nearest opponent, Bill Binkley. Stanley Wohlken also in the race scored 15 votes. In the closest election of the day, Catherine Robinson lost to Dorothy Wiley by 4 votes for the office of vice-president. Evelyn Wild was elected secretary over Norma Tibbets, and Ralph Stubbe, running unopposed, was elected treasurer.

The senior board of directors will be composed of Don Marshall, Florence Wikoff and Arline Castagnino.

Henry Lapuyade will head next year's Junior class. He wone from Charlotte Becker by one vote. Other members of the 1931 cabinet are Karl Frahm, vice-president; Beth Mouthrop, secretary; and George Aabel, treasurer. The board of directors will consist of Jennie Kennedy, Catherine Sparks, and Burnett Kniveton.

A series of elections is taking place at Sequoia. The first was the commissioners election, followed by the class elections in order to give the defeated candidates a chance to run for class offices. The Boys' Legue and Sequoia Girls' Society elections will be held today.
